

WONKY TONK

Full Bio

Much like a Tom Robbins novel, Wonky Tonk comes in many flavors.

“Often compared to Jenny Lewis, Lucinda Williams and Iris Dement, Wonky Tonk has played tunes alongside names like Sarah Shook & The Disarmers, Southern Culture on the Skids, Jessica Lee Mayfield, Langhorne Slim, Joe Fletcher, Paleface, Guy Clark, Elizabeth Clark, Trampled By Turtles, Sunset Rubdown, Southern Culture on the Skids and the David Mayfield Parade in towns all around the good ole US of A (CINCYMUSIC.COM).” Wonk is a solo cowgirl full of grace and grit traversing the country wooing metal-heads while leaving honky tonks to scratch their heads with a sparkle in their eye.

For Wonk in 2019, think Mazzy Star meets Janis Joplin coated in country Sonic Youth.

Wonky Tonk is a duo comprised of a cowgirl and a Deadman - Rob McAllister on bass, lead guitar, backup vocals, drums and ‘organ’ ... simultaneously. The mighty duo massage the faster, harder essence of a gritty broken heart with calloused, but soft soles.

Think 2010 Avett Brothers meets Shakey Graves.

Joined by three talented dudes, Wonky Tonk is backed by the Highlife in an effervescent dirge / psychedelic jam outfit sure to get you dancing and wonder why you assumed you were going to hear ‘country music.’ “This Kentucky Troubadour is guaranteed to steal your heart. Wonky Tonk finds herself in the “Indie-Country” category; with the Highlife, she’s the kinda country star that hipsters wouldn’t be embarrassed to say they like, while still keeping deep-rooted country fans happy (ELMORE MAGAZINE).”

Think 1971 Grateful Dead meets Jenny Lewis.

Whatever the case, once you get wonked, you will never be the same. You will remember your dreams, see sparkles on things that were once dull, and crave another taste...just to make sure your ear-drums, brain and heart were on the same page.

A sight to see, souls to be reckoned with and love to be had.

#GetWonked